To-Day and To-Morrow

Two Pianists and a

Baritone Heard in

By Sylvester Rawling.

M ME. SCHNABEL-TOLLEFSEN, pianist, and Horatio Connell, baritone, gave a joint recital at Acolian Hall last night. Mme.

Tollefsen's numbers included Mrs. Beach's "La Fee de la Fontaine," a

Chopin study in A flat, and Grieg's

"Variations on a Norwegian Air," all played pleasingly. Mr. Connell's fine voice and his clear enunciation are always good to hear, but he has little variety of expression and his songs last night savored of monstony. There was a large audience.

Blanche Goode, in this busy week

Blanche Goode, in this busy week for pianists, gave a piano recital in Acolian Hall yesterday afternoon. She has studied abroad and at home and is a teacher at Smith College. Her programme consisted of Schubert's sonata in A minor and examples of Chopin and Brahms, which she played to the delight of an audience of friends.
